Subject: Rosedale DS-1000 built in amp - 1" tweeter + 2x5" midrange + 8" subwoofer
Posted by deadwomble on Mon, 24 Mar 2008 00:22:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi - I've never heard of Rosedale but have been offered a pair of DS-1000 floor stand speakers for £200 with the specs below which I wrote down from the manual - they are boxed and brand new, but I'm dubious to take up the offer without looking at other options > i.e. what they are really worth and if I can find a similar set from a company which is easy to access in case of any faults (I'm new to the world of speakers).The only thing I can find out about Rosedale Acoustics is that they are owned by Vishorn Audio Equipment. Can anyone vouch for these guys? Also - with the specs below, can anyone suggest a similar product for me to consider?Sensitivity - 93db@1W/1MFrequency Response - 28hz-20Khz +/- 3dbPower - 200w2x3.5mm jacks - input sensitivity 200mv4xRCA jacks - input sensitivity 400mvSupply - AC-240V/50HzDimensions - 815(h)*190(w)*305(d)I noticed there are 4xRCA and 2x3.5mm outputs on the back of the main speaker and the manual stated its a 'digitally powered audio processor'.Thanks for reading - I look forward to your reply,Martin

Subject: Re: Rosedale DS-1000 built in amp - 1" tweeter + 2x5" midrange + 8" subwoofer
Posted by real_one on Mon, 24 Mar 2008 22:03:18 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Be careful - might be the dreaded white van speakers. If you can't find out much about them, chances are they're knock offs.