

---

Subject: Midrange horn experiments

Posted by GraemeG on Thu, 18 Dec 2003 03:55:16 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi all, this looks like a nice place !! I posted this info on another forum, but recent war centering on our buddy "Ed" pushed the post down quickly, and not many may have had an opportunity to see if this is of any use to them. The link describes measurements and observations I made when trying to get extended top end from a horn, and some of the results seem contrary to popular horn practise, so may be of interest to those seeking the same. Cheers PS: Using different moniker than other place to observe rules here ! PPS: I don't sell these speakers, they were a custom experiment.

Midhorn experiments

---

---

Subject: Re: Midrange horn experiments

Posted by Wayne Parham on Thu, 18 Dec 2003 05:40:27 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi Graeme! I noticed your posts, and it looked like you are on to something really good. You and Adrian Mack are doing some great work. Keep us posted here! Wayne

---