For those of you looking for a free service on which to host your speakerbuilding or stereo building pictures, via blogs and other sites I visit I repeatedly came across the highly-recommended Flickr, http://www.flickr.com . I've opened up a free account for myself and plan to use it going forward.So far, I've posted only a few pictures documenting construction of bat houses -- no speakers or electronics yet.

Thanks for the recommendation. Lots of people want to know where to host their image files, so this is good information indeed.
