Subject: Bill have you ever had the chance to have a manufacturer costume build you a driver for your horns ?
Posted by adavis464 on Sat, 07 Aug 2004 14:17:53 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

My brother did (before he passed away 3 years ago)from Eminence without any sucsess.It just seems that evryone is going about it the hard way.I understand the industy is gear to making loudspeaker to cater to a particular market.I see so many people on these forms that are not just by standers to the industy but players.Or are we still limited by materials.

Subject: Re: Bill have you ever had the chance to have a manufacturer costume build you a driver for your hor
Posted by Bill Fitzmaurice on Sat, 07 Aug 2004 18:06:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I did get an early version of the Mag 12 from Eminence, haven't got around to doing anything with it yet but I have something in mind. I ran into some issues with my Tuba 24 at very high power levels, and it just so happened that the new HL10a had just what was needed to fix them, so now I'm using that in my own cab and I recommend it for that box for power levels of 200 watts or better. Eminence is a very good company to work with as they are OEM only, don't make their own boxes, and are quite willing to custom spec a driver for relatively small runs.