I hate cats, always have, always will. They have no place in this Forum or anyone's home.

Citation from the book "Valve and Transistor Audio Amplifiers", page 195, by John Linsley Hood:"...At this point, may I introduce Fingal, my Siamese cat, who had a great liking for Bach organ music, and would climb onto my lap, and purr contentedly whenever I played one of his favourite pieces from gramophone record. If I had made any change in the reproduction system he would be aware of this, and signify his awareness by the angle or alertness of his ears. If, after a minute or two, he was prepared to accept the change he would settle down to (apparently) enjoy the music. On one occasion I was lent, for lecture purposes, an expensive and impeccably specified Hi-Fi amplifier. As soon as I began to play music through this new system Fingal leapt from my lap and fled from the room. Actually, I agreed with his judgement."

So as women, tubes, cars and everything else. Don`t you both afraid that your anger/hate against nice living creatures would turn noble metals in your amps in lead again; destroy your RIAA accuracy, and disturb the molecular/atom order you gain with cryogenics - but at that time you wouldn`t care/notice, `cos you listen just to Death Metal and Eminem (sometimes Britney, when you feel especially emotional)?

Cats : Lazy animals that consume and are dirty and serve no practical purpose...A dog would be more entertaining and healthier(go for walks etc)Seems alot of audiophiles are particular about their cats.Mike.e

Humans: Lazy animals that consume and are dirty and serve no practical purpose... A dog would be more entertaining and healthier (go for walks, etc.).Of course, it`s much better if you look at this with more understanding, compassion and love.

...for people like you. Another funny thing is that almost all mass-murders tortured and killed little animals in the begining of their "careers".

Maybe it`s the best to shift this OT "discussion" to the more proper place - "The Dungeon" forum, or delete it completely.And there`s even better place for photos and cartoons about torturing, killing, dead bodies (humans and animals), what some people found very funny - "rotten.com".

An reputable foreign magazine published the reportage about Dubrovnik and Cavtat. Very old and nice cities on the seaside, reach on culture, old buildings, beautiful nature, and what impressed the reporters even more - peace. They noticed many nice cats on the streets. Our newspapers published this article.After that, some "jokers" poisoned all the cats (and many dogs). They`re dying in pain on those streets for days, in front of the stunned turists.

The last physical altercation I ever had was with a guy who kept slapping his dog in the face. He was trying to teach her to come so He would call the dog; a pretty Golden Retreiver, then when the dog would cower and shake and refuse to come, he would yank her over with the leash and punch her. He found out what that feels like.
