Say BTW. There were some nice photo's of you guys; let me see, three pics of the guys and one pic of the audio stuff. And I noticed you hid the beers. Another thing; in the photo's of the equipment there are no people present. How do we know you guys were even listening? Hah? At least put a guy on the floor with some interconnects in his hand. Looks to me like it was just an excuse to have a good time. The power cords are suspiciously unconnected. No sign of an ART t-shirt either.

Have you noticed all those mutilated cow carcasses, but I digress. It's true, "the house in Cincinnati" is actually some more plywood sets in a secret hanger near Broome Lake. The "children" are CGI and all the equipment made of cardboard. I myself exist only in my head and with no external reality, can't be.

I knew there was something fishy about those pics. This just confirms my suspicions. So; you thought you'd get away with it, hah? Pretty slick, but it's all a facade. And that picture on the couch; Colin, holding a CD; probably a blank.
