If there are any local groups you think are worthwhile or if there is any small things you might feel would be helpfull to yourself and neighbors for Gods sake give us something to do. I feel worse if you don't ask; thinking there is something that could help and not knowing what it is.

Check out the Prosound Shootout. It isn't as big an issue as some of the world events going on, but I think it's very interesting as far as audio is concerned. Right now, the discussions are primarily behind the scenes, writing a test plan and setting up things. But I think we're all about ready to take the discussions public, so people can see what we're all doing and then obviously after the show, to analyze the data and understand what each product provides. So watch the Prosound Speakers forum for details as things progress.

Thanks Wayne; thats a good idea but I was actually thinking about Charlie D. I thought maybe if there was something of some small measure we could do as a group; it's just I can't think of a particular specific objective. Maybe some items that are scarce or something; you know, put our heads together. After all; thats what we do best isn't it?

Gotcha. I wrote to Charlie a couple days ago and he said he's doing OK. I know he appreciates your well wishes and the warm thoughts from everyone here.
