HiI was considering a DIY open baffle project. I was looking around at the Madisound website at the Hi Vi Labs speakers .They make a 3 inch full range speaker that looks like a good canidate for line array. And the prices are reasonable enough to make this a safe experiemnt. The model is the B3-S, and can be viewed at the Madisound website.This is kind of a new thing for me, not really a DIY person. Can someone take a look at this driver and give me an opinion on how many I would need in an array. Al;so do you think I can team it with a powered subwoofer for full range, or will I have to add a 6.5 or 8 inch woofer? Finally I suspect this driver is a canidate for a supertweeter. Thanks for your opinions regarding this project. I look forward to reading your comments and opinions. RegarsNeonKnight

Sorry to see your questions go unaswered, but I don't feel technically qualified to respond. Here's a thread that might help:http://www.audioroundtable.com/ArraySpeakers/messages/299.html
