This hasn't been brought up for a couple of years now, so I'd thought I'll ask it again. Does anybody have any comments on this line of drivers from Eminence? Would the drivers be appropriate for home use, either in a line array or as a single driver midrange?

Haven't heard or used them, but if there anything like the alpha 6's I'm sure they'll make a good midrange. In a line array though if you design for near-field listening, you would need to crossover right in the middle of the vocal range appox 1100 to 1200HZ to stay within the 1/2 wavelength criteria for nearfield arrays.HTHBill W.
