As my second car (Used for my business) I just have a ford escort station wagon. Should I be able to buy a CD player to put in this without much trouble?

My uncle is currently driving a 1986 Ford Escort station wagon. The stereo is good. There's a cd player to keep him entertain, enjoy and have fun while driving. So what are you wauting for? There are many available CD player for your car in the market.

I don't need anything to fancy just a decent sounding CD player to have placed in my car.

Frankly just about any decent car stereo place should be able to put in a CD player in pretty much any car. In my opinion anyway.

You can do whatever you want to your station wagon? you can put rims on them you can put tvs in it if you wish. Just because it's a station wagon doesn't mean that you can't do BWM things to it.

You can put a cd player in anything that moves. You could put a cd player on your bike if you were creative enough. All you need to do is go and get it installed. I'm sure all Radio Shacks do it.

Just as long you have a deck for which is can sit in. Well it's actually more called a kit. As long as you have a kit you are good to go.

Yes you can, and you can purchase a car stereo installation kit from Walmart at a decent price. They have kits for the make and model of your car.
