Hi. I have been looking for a place like this so I can get this identified. I found it at the Goodwill. The cabinet is very good for its age (whatever that is). It is an upright console with pb bc and fm bands. 6 pushbutton tuner with trimmer adjustments. Golden Throat components. The speaker is on the bottom with a drawer on each side. Above that is a drawer on each side. The one housing the radio swings open and the phono one flips down and the phono slides out. The am tuner works, not sure about the fm tuner and the phono doesn't work. It is a wooden cabinet and approx. 30x30x18D. I would be interested in selling. Can anybody help date it and rough appraise it? Thanks. Alan.

I forgot to add some #'s on it. Chassis RC-610, ser# 013558. A 38 with a teardrop inbetween at bottom is inked on it and a tube has 970507-2 on it. Thanks.

Sounds excellent! Does it work? Can you post a photo?

I am hoping to borrow a digital camera. My biggest problem is I found it here in Oregon where I am working for 2 more weeks and live in Alabama. I really don't want the hassle of having to keep it covered/keep it from getting ruined on my way back in the back of my truck. I am really hoping to get a rough value on it so I can possibly sell it through an ebay consignment store here. The am portion works, I think the volume knob contacts need cleaned to keep a consistent non static volume, the fm doesn't seem to work but I don't have an antenna and I am in a very rural area where I don't even get a good signal in the car, and the phono doesn't work. The pushbuttons don't work and the tuner is a little loose. I did smell something when I had it plugged in about 20 minutes checking it out, like lint burning off the tubes, but it may be something worse.
