Subject: Well I'm off to see the Wizard
Posted by MWG on Sat, 10 Dec 2005 15:24:21 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Sort of anyway There is a small gathering of audio fans in Portland today so I'm heading in there to see what I can hear so to speak A english major could have fun with that last sentence. I'm taking a piar of my KLH 17's as there some haven't heard a pair. Also a Pioneer SX 950 that is all cleaned up and working well. Should be a good time for all and I'm sure I'll learn a lot. I'm also taking my 15.00 Sony CDP 111ES for a source. Since I stopped the skipping it's a joy to listen to. I want to compare it with a higher end unit and see what I'm missing.

Subject: Re: Well I'm off to see the Wizard
Posted by Manualblock on Sat, 10 Dec 2005 16:30:35 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

KLH; they really have a nice musical sound don't they? I have a pair of 22's I use sometimes.

Subject: Re: Well I'm off to see the Wizard
Posted by MWG on Tue, 13 Dec 2005 13:49:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I just bought another pair of 17's for 40.00 last night off CL. I'll get them Friday and hope they are in as good a shape as my others are. Now when my boys want to get a decent setup I have some good speakers to outfit them with.The audio get together went very well. We had fun and I managed to get my Maggies ready to replace the tweeter wire. The guy with the surplus repair kit didn't show but in the Spring they will ship the adhesive again. I picked up a Adcom speaker switcher so now I can take some measure of control over the maze of wires when trying to switch between speakers

Subject: Re: Well I'm off to see the Wizard
Posted by Manualblock on Wed, 14 Dec 2005 00:56:51 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

What do you use to drive the Maggie's? The Pioneer?

Subject: Re: Well I'm off to see the Wizard
Posted by MWG on Wed, 14 Dec 2005 01:43:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I have a MC-2505 or a MC-275 tube amp to drive them with when they're fixed. I like the sound of the Maggies but they'll never replace my old Altecs. I've lived with them too long to be objective about most other speakers. Besides, the Altecs just seem to have a more musical sound. Probably just me though. The Pioneer I bought because I'm sure someday my boys will tire of the video games and want to hear something decent.

Subject: Re: Well I'm off to see the Wizard
Posted by Manualblock on Thu, 15 Dec 2005 02:00:15 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Yes; I am an Altec Fan also; they have great tone. Do you think the video games are a passing fad? I really don't know how to gauge the future in regards to how my kids will evolve. I gave up.But I do believe that we are entering a different world that has no fundamental paradigm's upon which to predict coming trends. Not like we did or our parents had. I think there are serious seismic shifts in perception of reality similar to what occurred after the great depression where people adopted entirely different views completely unnatached to those they experienced throughout their lives prior to that event.

Subject: Re: Well I'm off to see the Wizard
Posted by MWG on Thu, 15 Dec 2005 03:34:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I hope they are a fad but think they will last a long time. My oldest is 27 and still plays them occaisionally. When I was young reading was my escape but now days it seems that something visual that provides instant gratification is more popular. I really couldn't make an educated guess as to where things are headed because I live near a small town and don't watch TV or listen to the news much and avoid populated areas like the plague So I'm pretty much a country bumpkin.

Subject: Re: Well I'm off to see the Wizard
Posted by Manualblock on Thu, 15 Dec 2005 14:44:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Well; you sound like an interesting guy. Even in small towns there is no escape anymore. My parents live in North Dakota in a town of about 600 people. The police are stretched to the limit trying to deal with all the meth cookers springing up in the area's motels and abandoned farms. My dad says he sees cars completely damaged beyond repair racing around with "crazy people" in them.Hope you don't have that problem!He moved out of New York because he wanted a quieter life.
