I see the website is running. Says "Smith and Larson Audio". Is their product pretty good?

I have their older (dos and serial port) model, and it is very good.The readings I get match very well with the specs given by Parts Express on drivers they supply and have measured (and I also have (from them)).....I would imagine their new model to do as well or better.(no good for me though since my lab pc is dos only)Haven't tried their forum lately (it didn't work as well as their product):(, but got good email response on some questions I had.
