We haven't made the move to a 5.1 DVD system, but before we do I'd like to know if there are good wireless systems available, and how pricey they'd be. Have you had experience with a wireless system?

Skip Pack brought a Squeezebox to GPAF 2006. I was pretty impressed with it. Sounded great.

I have a 5.1 but I still haven't hooked it up yet. They can get very pricey and for what is worth, all I can say is it better be worth something. I spent almost 3 grand for mine.

REally and where did you get it from. Did you buy it online or did you buy it from a local store?

I believe Skip Pack's system was homemade. That sounds interesting. I thought that there were wireless 5.1 surround speaker systems on the market.

Yeah me to, I wouldn't see why they weren't. IT wasn't too long ago that I had bought mine. So if that is the case, then it must of just happened.

You're exactly right randle. I'm more conscious in a quality of a certain thing. I think 3 grand is a fair price.
