

---

Subject: Room size vs. Picture Size

Posted by randle on Mon, 21 May 2007 14:19:45 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

What should the ratio be for picture size to room size to get the best overall picture quality?

---

---

Subject: Re: Room size vs. Picture Size

Posted by shinningstar on Tue, 29 May 2007 05:42:26 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I'm not sure of the specific ratio of that Ricardo but there's only one technique my mother taught me. For the best home theater experience, bigger is not always better.

---

---

Subject: Re: Room size vs. Picture Size

Posted by randle on Mon, 04 Jun 2007 22:05:22 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

You probably have a point. I have a friend who has a Huge screen in a tiny little one bedroom apartment. It dominates the room. It's like seeing Star Wars in the very front row.

---

---

Subject: Re: Room size vs. Picture Size

Posted by Ricardo on Mon, 11 Jun 2007 13:41:23 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

A friend of mine is currently dealing with this issue. He's sort of hoping that whoever buys the house he has to move from will also make an offer on his large screen TV. I think I'd exhaust every possible layout before I'd replace the TV, if I was moving to a smaller place and still had it.

---

---

Subject: Re: Room size vs. Picture Size

Posted by randle on Thu, 14 Jun 2007 20:13:18 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I guess it gets to the point where the tv could overshadow the room, which isn't good because you find yourself not comfortable. Plus it becomes over bearing.

---

---

---

Subject: Re: Room size vs. Picture Size

Posted by granch on Wed, 10 Oct 2007 04:37:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I'd say go back to your motion picture theater experience. Where do you usually sit in the movie house if there is room to sit wherever you want? Visualize that and then sit in your intended seat at home and project that size on the other side of the room where you will be putting the set. Then measure what size that screen would be. I'll bet that unless you have a very small room, you will want a pretty big sized screen. Especially if you are buying an HDTV - and who would buy anything else today. Remember analog sets are going to be illegal (sort of) in just a few years (2?). At least you will have to buy a converter. If I remember right we sit about 13 ft from the screen of a 60 inch screen HDTV. We wanted a 70 inch but couldn't fit it in the room. We are NOT first row sitters in the movies- usually about 60-70% back.-Dick

---

---

Subject: Re: Room size vs. Picture Size

Posted by willyable on Thu, 18 Oct 2007 23:49:36 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I would rather for my tv to be bigger than smaller any day. I think if you position it correctly then you can work it out. I do understand the concept that you need to have the right size though for your room. But for me bigger is always better.

---