
Subject: big screens

Posted by randle on Wed, 13 Jun 2007 21:56:59 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Why do people feel that they need a big screen to enjoy a home theatre? I thought it was more about the surround sound that you put together that gave it the affect of being in a real live theatre.

Subject: Re: big screens

Posted by shinningstar on Thu, 21 Jun 2007 08:41:53 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Some people prefer big screen for a double purpose. Big screen satisfied the viewer especially in watching movies or concert DVD's. And it's more realistic to watch as if you're in a cinema movie theatre. So there's no need for you to spend bucks for the ticket of a movie premier show outside.

Subject: Re: big screens

Posted by colinhester on Sun, 24 Jun 2007 02:03:42 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The wife and I toured 9 multi-million dollar new construction homes this week. The trend in these houses seemed to be: very big screens (100"+) and ultra-high end projectors; non-dedicated HT rooms as in the past; and lower end audio equipment with an emphasis on boomy bass. The focus was very much on the visual experience and not the sound....C
Homearama

Subject: Re: big screens

Posted by randle on Thu, 28 Jun 2007 17:19:29 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I think that if you are going to go big then you should have equal sound, it just makes sense, why would you not have the same. Why have a big screen with a small sound?Thats silly

Subject: Re: big screens
Posted by willyable on Thu, 18 Oct 2007 23:57:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I agree, I have a big screen and have no reason what so ever to even go spend money at a theatre when I have a theatre like environment in my living room.

Subject: Re: big screens
Posted by love4music on Fri, 19 Feb 2010 17:48:58 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

For me, the size matters! I love the big, flat screen TV that I have. I also love the speakers all around the room too. Next I'm putting in the reclining chairs (movie-theater seats).

Subject: Re: big screens
Posted by candoon on Mon, 22 Feb 2010 22:07:53 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Size matters to me too! I just went out and got a new TV and I love it. My eye sight is going bad, I still sit the proper distance from it (and when I am out watching movies in a theater), so why not? I earned the money, I can spend it as I like.

Subject: Re: big screens
Posted by Lancelot on Thu, 25 Mar 2010 02:09:13 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

We like our TV screens to be big because we are used to the big screens from the movie theaters. We try to copy that setup as much as possible to feel the same experience like watching it in the theaters.

Subject: Re: big screens
Posted by candoon on Sat, 27 Mar 2010 17:33:28 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Mine would be dinky compared to a 100+ one. But I still think its quite nice and yes most of the time we are watching movies or concerts. We traded in an old Philips for this one.

Subject: Re: big screens

Posted by Lazarus on Tue, 06 Apr 2010 08:17:36 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

randle wrote on Wed, 13 June 2007 16:56

Why do people feel that they need a big screen to enjoy a home theatre? I thought it was more about the surround sound that you put together that gave it the affect of being in a real live theatre.

I am not a big fan of big screens either. Just like you, I think it's the surround sound that makes your home theater room feels like a real theater. So, I would rather spend money for enhancing my sound system than spend if on a big screen.

Subject: Re: big screens

Posted by Chuckles101 on Fri, 18 Jun 2010 11:30:56 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I think the main reason why people prefer large screens (including me!) is because it comes closer to imitating the theater experience. It is also, for instance, if you buy a blu-ray dvd, you can only make sure of it on a large screen that has Full HD.

Subject: Re: big screens

Posted by JiminyCricket on Sat, 17 Jul 2010 10:14:03 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

In terms of size, try using the math formula someone told me about.

Basically, with a HDTV you simply measure the screen (n inches) and then work out if you can comfortably sit between 1.3 - 3 times that measurement away from it.

If you can then go ahead. If not, then sorry but your room is too small

I agree that the sound should match the size - too much in a small room seems pointless.

Subject: Re: big screens

Posted by FE3T on Wed, 20 Apr 2011 16:54:29 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

As we speak i watch this on a 106" screen, the picture are projected there by an Optoma HD200x.

This combo does not cost me much more than a 42" LED tv, expecially if i calculate in the cost of having a tv with a tuner here in Norway, Here we pay 400$ yearly in television fees to the state.

Since i dont own a TV, or a tuner, i dont have to pay those fees.

Currently i use my computer as a source, and watches DVD, saved HD video files (mostly the .mkv format) and streamed video. i do also use the computer as music provider trough mp3, flac and streamed audio.

To me, this is perfect, but for a person who cares abut sports programs or soap opereas it would probably be somewhat lacking.
