

---

Subject: analog formats

Posted by Fermi on Thu, 19 Aug 2004 21:49:30 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

What is composite, component and S-video? Which is better?Thnx, Fermi

---

---

Subject: Re: analog formats

Posted by Audio Jones on Thu, 19 Aug 2004 22:41:58 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Component video is RGB, where each color gun is driven by a separate channel. It is the best analog format. S-video separates chroma and luminance signals (color and brightness) and is second best. Composite video combines all facets of the video signal into one composite signal and is the most common analog format.

---