Is there enough HI-def content out there in Broadcast to suit everyone? I would be interested in your opinions please!

We have 1080i thru cable feeding a 42" plasma and subscribe to several HD channels. Couldn't tell you the last time I watched a program in HD. Pretty much a waste of money so far...C

Wow, really? I have never seen anything in HD and I want to see it before I spend money on it. So far all I have heard is that most ppl turn it off because it shows too much.

What I meant was the pores of the face and other features like that. I actually read somewhere that TV sets and stages would have to be completely redone for HDTV because most of them have flaws that don't show up on standard broadcast TV but will be obvious on HDTV.
