Subject: Are there any deals on router bits on the internet?
Posted by GarMan on Thu, 21 Apr 2005 16:51:53 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Are there any good deals available on router bits on the internet, or is it still the case of "you get what you pay for".To date, I've been sticking with bits from Freud and Lee Valley. I pay a premium on them, but I have never had any problems with them, even when I abuse them.Just checking to see if there's a source for high quality bits with discount pricing that I don't know about.gar.

Subject: Re:try grizzly
Posted by Bill Martinelli on Thu, 21 Apr 2005 19:03:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Gar,I usually buy Amana, Onsrud or Bosch cutters when I can. They will cost more than some, but they dont cost more than some of the other 'top' names and I find the cut quality and how long before a sharping to be best on these. (meaning less chip out AND less sanding) I have used the least expensive house brand that woodcraft sells adn some for the cutter from Grizzly.com and for the money they perform very well. try some mail order from grizzly or woodcraft next time you need a cutter. You can do a search for the other brands on google. there are some good online carbide houses. bill grizzly router bits

Subject: Re:try grizzly
Posted by GarMan on Thu, 21 Apr 2005 19:51:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You say cutter. I say bits. Must be a regional thing.I've bought Onsrud spiral up-cuts from Lee Valley and they are very good. Went through 3/4" MDF like butter in just two pass. Could have even done it in one, but didn't try.I'll look up Bosch and Grizzly next time I need a new "cutter" (see, I can adapt!). Since I've got my portable router table setup, I'm looking at cutters that I've never considered before.thx,Gar.

Subject: Re: Are there any deals on router bits on the internet?
Posted by Pete K on Fri, 22 Apr 2005 01:57:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Try MLCS. I've been using their bits for years. They also scored very high in some tests done by Fine Woodworking several years ago.Pete K

Subject: Re: Are there any deals on router bits on the internet?
Posted by Pete K on Fri, 22 Apr 2005 02:20:30 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Make that mlcswoodworking.com. Sorry.Pete K

Subject: Re: Are there any deals on router bits on the internet?
Posted by mark@marktwain on Mon, 25 Apr 2005 17:26:53 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Jesada's are very good and reasonable.http://iseek.com/Projects/omnicat5/index.php?cat_id=0