These are the guys.http://www.heyboertransformers.com/index.shtmlTalk to the man who wrote teh email. His name is Phil. I don't think there has been any change in the policy of sending the bill with the goods. They have a Paypal account too. Just remind them to include all possible payment methods on the invoice.regards,Douglas

Are they aware of the quantity discount? Should we apply at any particular time or just do it?

I'm in. I'd say we probably have at least 5 here.

I suggest waiting to purchase, unless the seller agrees to give a quantity discount just by the response he sees here. If not, maybe Colin will collect the money from everyone and then purchase them all at once. I think we'll have at least 5 buyers.

in answer to 'block's question, I think the qty discount only applies to a batch wound up at the same time. Makes reasonable sense to do it that way.Block, Wayne, and Colin makes three so far. I don't think anybody needs to collect any money, just send it to Heyboer yourselves. Ask them how much the anticipated shipping will be and make out the check...they'd probably like to be paid first if you're going for the qty break to seperate delivery(one each, doesn't pay to ship them twice, no?).regards,Douglas

Yes;that was my point earlier; concerning whether they will be aware of the quantity discount and how to apply it.

On the discount: there is only one group who will (likely) be buying this special TX, just tell them you are in on the build. Gather yourselves here, and on the apointed day, everybody who wants one should call in and make the order. A week and a hlaf or so later the Iron will appear at your door!regards,Douglas
