Sorry for multiple posts I forgot something. Here is my dilemma. Par-metal has a beautiful Black Anodine 3/8's" front face plate with nice handles. The rest of the chassis is powder coat black enamel. What I need to know is they will silk screen in Gold leaf any wording for a fee on the face plate. I was considering Guinevere in some kind of calligraphic script on an angle across one corner. Then maybe ART in small letters straight across under the model name. What is the protocol here concerning using the name? Thanks J.R. This chassis can be matched for the Amps. It is 19 inch width.

Protocol? Seriously, copyrights in America are owned by the person who authored the letter, book, schematic, music, or whatever. American trademarks are governed by first use. Then there is the issue of "fair use" which says you can reference protected materials in certain conditions. In any case, this place is a cooperative arena that I think you and I and everyone else would agree wishes to be, well, cooperative. I don't have a problem with your putting "Guinevere" or "ART" on your amp's front panel. I can't speak for the others, but I don't think anyone will mind. I'd be kind of bummed if you didn't.

Thanks Wayne; I know the copy laws somewhat but the legal aspect wasn't the issue so much as the courtesy; I don't want to step on any toes. Copyright is only as good as your attorney any way.(wink)

please don't miss-spell it(though there are probably several accepted means of spelling the name

). It's late, I covered a lot of ground today and I'm just giving you a hard time...regards,Douglas
