I have a group of stuff I want to get rid off. Ron Sprkman57 has introduced me to the wonderful world of two way Altec set ups, so I have a bunch of drivers and other stuff to sell. Everything is in very good condtion. Go to the link below and see a brief description and picture. Drop me a line for details and price. I would love to sell the whole group at a steal price, but will happily sell individually, and give large discount for multiple items.

You have a great collection there. Love to hear how they all came about. Those damn Tangbands I was playing with earlier this spring got me hooked on this single driver thing. Can you tell anything about the three sets of full-rangers you have there? Is the Altec 409 a single or pair? Did you ever get a chance to hear these in a cabinet? Gar.

Hey GarThe 409 Altec is a single speaker, if you can find another it would be a steal at my price of $10, sound is nice, bottom end good, needs help on the top. The Heathkits are a pair. The picture shows them mounted on a couple baffles I had on a back loaded horn cabinet, good bottom end, not impressed with top end so I use a 1st order xover and add a tweeter and they sound very nice. The Telefunks are by far the best sounding single speaker I have used. Good performance all around, very smooth with solid bass and top end. Imaging is excellent great speakers. All of the speakers were used in a cabinet. The Telefunks came out of a console I purchased from an elderly lady who said she used the radio maybe twice in 20 years and they look new. If interested let me know and we can do some price talk, but cheap is the order of the day.

Send me a email and we can talk turkey. I think the heathkits are worth some effort, as I understand it they used Altec to build these drivers and put their name on them. Anyway drop me an email and we can discuss.Tim
