Subject: Wayne, why did you choose Pi as your company name?
Posted by James W. Johnson on Sun, 05 Aug 2001 17:55:52 GMT

Hello Wayne,I have been searching the net for pictures of Pis to put on my new Four Pi webpage and I ran into some pretty interesting sites, it made me wonder why you choose Pi as your speaker company's name?Also do you have any other Pi logos I can put on my webpage?..If so please e-mail them to me.ThanksJames

Subject: Pi Speakers
Posted by Wayne Parham on Sun, 05 Aug 2001 20:16:09 GMT

Yes, it's interesting to do a search for "Pi" on the internet. You'll find everything from fractals to frat houses.I chose the name because every formula that concerns itself with rotational velocity uses Pi, so practically every fomula required to design a loudspeaker uses it too. From the angular coverage to reactive formulas, Pi is everywhere.And there's one other third thing. The spelled with that character set.By the way, the logo used today has remained exactly the same since 1977. I used to hand paint them with a stencil, and I still have the original stencils. A few were made with sterling silver poured into a mold, with three risers being used for mounting legs. But for several years, I've used the vinyl decal instead.