According to Eminence, all motors manufactured prior to 1999 were "made to order" and specifications were dictated by the purchasing distributor. So, with the exception of large vendors, there will likely not be a "standard" Eminence product before that time. You might have been able to find a standard Eminence offering from a particular vendor (as I did), but you could not have found an Eminence offering that was standard between vendors.This is described in a letter from Chris Rose
