fellow inmates and till.e, show us your stuff. as much fun as it is(hair pulling for others) to build pi speakers the end result is the end result. show your equipment and share your trials and tribulations in obtaining better sound. it's the music which matters.<http://www.villagephotos.com/pubbrowse.asp?selected=13296> cheers,george

Seriously, I hope to borrow one from work as soon as my Theater 4 Pi's are complete but the architectural work load is building up; no recession here and therefore no time to work on the Pi's. Damn! I've got a pair of Bottlehead Paramours sitting unassembled at home just dying to spring to life and romp with the Pi's as well! Double damn!!!Garland

Did that! But unfortunately I really was sick. We've been having a heap of flu and stomach viruses going around here in the Boston area this winter. I've come down with both for a week each, all within 6 weeks. Not only used up all my sick time but much of my vacation as well! First time I've been sick in years!Garland

You obviously don't depend on corner or wall/floor loading to produce bass response with that backyard rig. You could post that on the Single Driver website since it doesn't have a tweeter. John
