Subject: Behringer feedback destroyer
Posted by Jerry Parker on Wed, 03 Jul 2002 23:04:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Well I just got my Behringer feedback destroyer pro in today. Its a prosound device designed to eliminate mic feedback. But it also has a robust parametric equilizer built in, and that is the purpose I am using it for, subwoofer equilization. I dont have PI speakers, but I thought some of you might find this interesting if you have a seperatly amplified subwoofer system. I had a 20dB peak at 40hz, and now the peak is virtually gone. The response from 40hz to 80hz is very flat. I really reccomend it for anyone who is having bass problems in their house.

Subject: Re: Behringer feedback destroyer
Posted by freddyi on Fri, 05 Jul 2002 18:03:07 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hey Jerry - pretty good & way cool - is it the new version? - if so - wonder if smooth enough to use on a fullrange system? - did you dial in the EQ on front panel or use a PC?