Finally getting around to posting about the meeting that took place at my house last weekend. We were very fortunate to have David Janszen haul "The JansZem Model One" down from Columbus. David's dad, Arthur, invented the electroststic. To say it was a fun time would be an understatement. I met some new friends and got to listen to some fabulous speakers right in the comfort of my living room. I've heard electrosts before, but these are really in a class by themselves. They were able to fill a very large space to convincing levels and imaged no matter where you stood in the room, but the sweet-spot was a real treat David unloading:David Janszen:Setting up and calibration:Close up of the Model One:\Bunch of new friend enjoying some tunes:
