Subject: tech advice
Posted by Manualblock on Sun, 28 Mar 2004 01:49:15 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Wayne and all, Beautiful new site, , real tasteful. Nice shirt, cuter than a chinese baby. Cleaning out my VHS tapes and found an old tape of John Lee Hooker playing with Charlie Musslewhite and Bonnie Raitt, I wish I knew how to restore old VHS onto CDR cause this is one great tape, forgot all about it nice surprise. Looks like DCC Vinyl has re-released Easy Rider with some alternate takes, there goes another 20 bucks! If you wanna be a bird! Anybody check out Vanishing Point yet?

Subject: Re: tech advice
Posted by Wayne Parham on Mon, 29 Mar 2004 05:05:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I think I'd get the best tape player I could find and connect it to my PC's audio inputs. That way you could record the CD yourself. If you don't like the quality, you can always take it to be done by someone else. But if your sound card is good and your tape deck is too, then you'll probably do as well as anyone.If you're wanting to record video as well, then you'll need an image capture board. Those have come waaaaaay down in price in the last 5 years, so that's a reasonable option as well. Again, if you don't have the stuff to make the transfer, I'm sure you can find someone locally that will do it for you.