

---

Subject: now i know why a stradavarius is made from wood.....

Posted by replay on Wed, 02 Oct 2002 14:28:24 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

.....because plastic is designed to hold soda. i was happy with my h290's until my newly acquired solid walnut martinelli horns arrived. i took my time installing them as i admired the old world craftsmanship bill put's into them. they are truly a work of art. when i fired them up i noticed an immediate improvement. more sparkle, bigger sound and increased output. i have to turn down my tweeters 1db now. i actually hear more output in the top octave as well. can you tell i'm pleased? and they are absolutely gorgeous too boot. well done bill!cheers,george

---

Subject: Sweet!

Posted by Wayne Parham on Wed, 02 Oct 2002 16:19:04 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Those horns look great, and your speakers look great!!!

---

Subject: Re: now i know why a stradavarius is made from wood.....

Posted by bmar on Wed, 02 Oct 2002 21:31:27 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Thanks for the kind words George. I'm glad you like the sound.Bill