Yes i just finish my first set dht (based on the legacy amp by thorsten with few modification to psu {jj el84 tube}) I'm very pround and it sound best than i could imagine... (i made comparison between a modified marantz model 140 pushpull and a ss diy 10W class A se...)now i would like to gain some power with a high effiency speaker. my current speaker are tdl rlt3 (2 1/2way, 90Db/1W/m)I'm looking for good bass (even better than my tdl) and my priority is to have very good vocal (both female and male)the music i listen is approx75% jazz and blues 15% classical5% rock5% otherwhich series could be a good choice for me (thinking about theater, thermionic, stage and premium) i also looking for hammerdynamic and afterburnerthanks loudspeakers have been the most popular with tube amp owners. Other suitable choices include than 10 watts and has high quality output transformers, then you can consider any of the models to be good choices. But for low power SET amps, I think you'd be best staying with the models mentioned above.
