Subject: Corner horn suggestions
Posted by Dave Callan on Wed, 23 Apr 2003 03:27:04 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hello Wayne and others,I'm moving soon and will finally have a dedicated listening room. Room dimensions about 15' by 12' with 7.5' ceilings, two good corners and a concrete floor. I want to try some corner horns for use with about 8 watts of tube power. I can't make the thermionic 7's fit but anything else is possible. What would you suggest for best sound quality? Ideally, I'ld like to use the PS2002's I already have on hand.Regards,Dave Callan

Subject: Re: Corner horn suggestions
Posted by Wayne Parham on Wed, 23 Apr 2003 13:33:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'm partial to the JBL Professional Series stuff, so I'd most like to see you build Professional your PSD2002's with them, and just run JBL for the other components. The PSD2002 is a great part for the money, so it makes a lot of sense to run the JBL's for the woofers and midrange and the Eminence for the top.Another couple of options that are great are the Stage Series and the Theater Series. I think the Stage Series sevens are quite impressive for the money, sounding good choice, and they'll really hit the low notes for a relatively small package and not a lot of dough.

Subject: Re: Corner horn suggestions
Posted by Mover Dave on Wed, 23 Apr 2003 23:44:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Thanks for the information. I'll do some more research and get some plans from you soon.Regards,Dave Callan