Site listed on the link is from Italy. It seems to be a largeinventory of audio websites which may be of interest.

Looks like one of those blog things Epstein was talking about. I couldn't make out much of it since it was in Italian. But I'll run Babelfish on it this morning though so I can check it out.

I initially ran into this link at a public terminal, so I copied it down because it got me to John Krutke'swebpage. Krutke is frequently on the Madisound board and Iam starting one of his small projects. Singe Driver Websitewas also on there. The full address should take you to theindex of all these audio links (I was just in the 'j's.) the full path is

You must speak Italian. ;-) I poked around in there again and noticed no Cain and Cainentry but there is one for Carolina Audio. So the list is not completebut has a nice International flavor. A good place to go 'wishbook'shopping.
