Thanks for your comments on the new site. I was in a rush to get it out, so I've still got a lot of work to do - Things like including images on the shopping cart so you can see what you're buying. But it is an improvement, having a more current "look and feel."And the best thing is the prices. I've got 'em all listed better than the other large distributors. In fact, until we got around to updating our prices recently, we were cheating ourselves pretty badly. Now we're more in line with the market, but still less expensive than the other distributors.

You might want to drop the 3003 compression drivers, considering they have been discontinued. I can't wait to see what Eminence comes out with next, though!Adam

I had considered the timing of de-listing the PSD3003 ever since Eminence first decided to discontinue it and develop a new 2" exit driver. I've decided to continue the offering for several reasons. There are a lot of people that really like the midrange from the PSD3003, so we purchased every one we could when Eminence stated their intentions early this year. We even bought 16 ohm units from Eminence because we already carried 8 ohm diaphragms, and this allowed us to provide either one. So we still have stock of PSD3003's, although they are dwindling. As soon as we cannot offer them anymore, we'll remove the listing.
