Now that you have experience with the para's on your 4pi's in your opinion will they provide enough power to satisfy on many different types of music at slightly louder than conversation as well as the occasional loud rock day. This style of listening in a room 18x16x8 with the four pi's has been working with a dynaco st 35 but I really want a better quality amp to use with my seduction and fourplay and I cannot determine whether to go ahead with a para or spring for the 300b. Because we have no way to audition these combo's I must rely on opinions I can trust. It's probably annoying to have to offer these opinions but who else? How do you feel about bi-amping? Thanks all for any opinions offered obviously not like what your 35 watt amp will do. That's greater than 10dB difference.
