Finally finished my matching centre speaker. Shown is the centre. It must be the largest centre in existence - 36x18x18 - I made it this large to match my Left and Right. All three have Premium Stage Eminence drivers though the cabinets are sized(excepting the enlarged port) for Theatre 4 Pi.The link is to the view of the front of my home theatre l-c-r Pi and 2 M&K subs. My 100 lb puppy has been into the port of my left speaker thus the pink insulation shown - it was painted black.Many thanks to Wayne and of course to the rest of you especially Bill E's posts about what tools/materials to use.Craig

What an interesting layout! You're right - It does make for a large dialog speaker. But that's a great way to do, having the dialog channel match the mains. I'll bet it sounds excellent.I love that leather finish. Your speakers are very interesting looking and attractive. Thanks for posting the photo for your center speaker, and for the previous photo of the mains.

Is that a spare kitchen or something? Temporary installation for photo op? I can just imagine the conversation when the wife strolls in.That's one very powerful HT system Craig.
Congratulations!John

Spare kitchen - our basement was setup with an outlaw suite when we bought it - figured it wasn't worth ripping it out....I understand kids never move out anymore so it may be a viable option when they're older.
