
Subject: Finished my Stage Series 4 Pis!

Posted by James W. Johnson on Fri, 23 Jul 2004 01:34:56 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Id say WOW! but that is just too dramatic and old but the truth is that it only took a minute of playing them to figure out that they are like my Klipsch Reference series to the tenth power!!
Excuse my language but holy crap!

<http://home.comcast.net/~bentvalve/pi.htm>

Subject: Gorgeous!

Posted by Wayne Parham on Fri, 23 Jul 2004 09:10:57 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Those look stunning, James. They're really gorgeous!

Subject: Re: Finished my Stage Series 4 Pis!

Posted by GarMan on Fri, 23 Jul 2004 18:41:18 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Very nice James. I'm glad every thing worked out for you and they exceeded your expectations. Time to build a matching center channel! I think a Premium 3PI would be a great match. What kind of screws did you use to attached the horns to the baffle? Did you insert plugs over the screw to cover them up?Gar.

Subject: Re: Great Looking & V. Nice matching on the veneer. nt

Posted by Matts on Fri, 23 Jul 2004 18:43:18 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

.

Subject: Re: Finished my Stage Series 4 Pis!

Posted by James W. Johnson on Sat, 24 Jul 2004 13:09:49 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Gar, they are 5/8" drywall screws, they worked out very nicely. I had some #8 stainless screws with some washer ready to go but when I discovered how little space there is between the screw and hole I had to go with something less stressing on the wood. I predrilled and torqued the screws down with the lowest setting on my drill...it worked out nicely. (shame on Eminence BTW!) Also I got two different looking H290 horns in that one must be a new rev. because its hole could have been much smaller...probably at least an inch smaller both ways. I think i'll take the stainless screws out of the Omegas and replace them with black screws as well...I am fortunate to have a hardware store nearby with an insane selection of screws and they have some #8 black screws.

Subject: Re: thanks but the veneer came in 4'x8' sheets! :-) nt
Posted by James W. Johnson on Sat, 24 Jul 2004 13:13:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

nt
