Saw on your site the lab exchanger for sale. That's a really good price. I know what it costs to machine these things, (having done it for another speaker) and the amount of work you put into it. In case anybody's looking for them, Wayne's practically selling them at cost.

You're right. Most machine shops in the country want $50.00-100.00 per cooling plug, qty 1. Some are as high as $300.00. When I buy them in large quantities, I can get them down under $50.00.
