Got a few pics with links for Pi speakers on the speaker page. Any others are more than welcome to be suggested for puttin' on. Keep in mind this is a work in progess.Links to threads pertinent to building Pi's or modifying them also would be neat to have.

That's a great page, Shane, thanks! As far as links to builders tips, there are so many pages of useful tips and tricks in this forum, I wouldn't know where to begin.

I know there are a bunch of tips out there, but surely there are a few that most have tried. Shoot, just links to proper placement, proper dampening would probably be helpful, especially to those jsut beginning a build. I know they were for me to get the sound just right.

You're right. I'll try to make time to compile a list and send it to you, hopefully by the weekend. Might be helpful to think of a list of topics first, then I can make a list of posts that address each of them best. So if anyone has suggested topics for Shane's FAQ, please chime in.

Thanks! Yeah Lance Rocks! IF you take the time to read my stories and pages you'll see my family is about 90% cancer ridden by the same specific type of very rare cancer and the support the LAF has given my family personally. There have been several more afflicted this year as I haven't updated the pages since Oct.I need to sign up again to help raise money for the 5th year now. They've revamped the way they do things as far as the LAF's setup goes since Lance retired and I haven't had time to adjust my pages so none of the donate links are working right now. I've managed to raise almost $2500 for them every year though in my spare time.
